Dear Colleague,

I invite you to join me as a member of the American Society for Pain Management Nursing (ASPMN). Do you care for patients who are experiencing pain? Almost every nurse does and that is why ASPMN says that every nurse is a pain management nurse. ASPMN exists to advance optimal evidence-based nursing care for persons experiencing pain, empowering nurses to be the preeminent voice in promoting safe and effective pain management. By becoming a member, you are supporting this mission delivered through ASPMN-sponsored education, research, and networking. Your membership dues also support ASPMN’s presence on Capitol Hill when bills and discussions arise that affect people with pain and those who treat them.

Additionally, ASPMN® membership pays for itself due to multiple benefits, some of which include:

- Discounts on educational offerings (e.g., recorded education sessions, annual conferences, Master Faculty courses, pain certification preparation, and more)
- Subscription to Pain Management Journal
- An Online Listserv for valuable networking and clinical problem-solving.
- Committee/Task Force participation and leadership opportunities for professional development and mentorship while addressing pain-related concerns.
- Funding for research grants or evidence-based projects

Annual dues are only $150 but the benefits, features, and services received with ASPMN® membership are valued at more than $700.

Please visit the ASPMN website at www.aspmn.org to explore more details of our conferences, educational offerings, position statements, and the online store.

I would love to answer any questions, so feel free to contact me via email or text. Action: Join today!
